The first section is the website's main navigation. It consists of Subject Guides, Books and Media, Journals and Videos, and Help.

This navigation will remain consistent throughout the website. Clicking the library icon always returns to the home page.

On the Help page there are a few popular links that you can browse . For example, if you want to see what library website icons mean, click on Website Key. Type keywords in the search bar to browse specific needs.

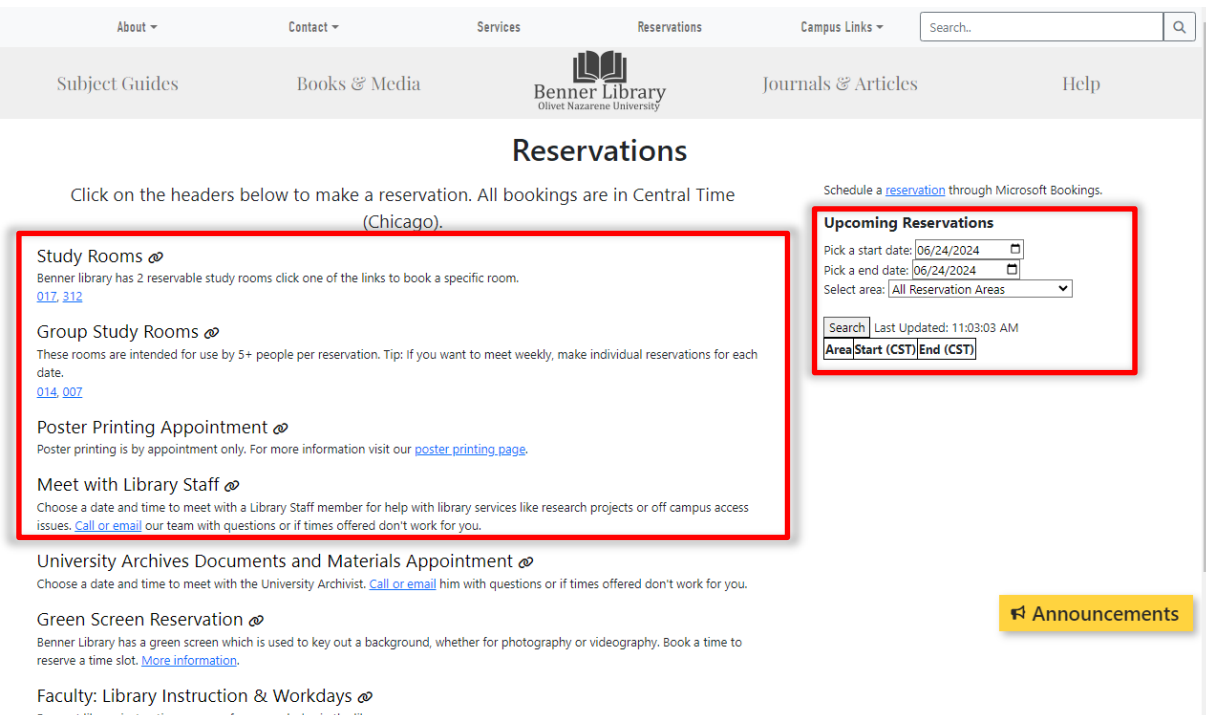

This screenshot shows the 'Help' page of the Benner Library website. The navigation bar is identical to the previous image. The main content area is titled 'Help' and is organized into several sections: 'Find Articles' with a list of links such as 'Advanced Searching' and 'Building eResource Links'; 'Find Books' with links like 'Find eBooks' and 'Library Account'; 'More Help' with links including 'Ask A Librarian' and 'Website Key' (highlighted with a red box); and 'Citation Help' with links for 'APA 7th Edition', 'Avoid Plagiarism', and 'Chicago/Turabian Help'. A 'Search All' search box is located on the right side of the page, containing the text 'Search for Help...' and a 'Clear' button. A yellow 'Announcements' button is positioned in the bottom right corner.

Top Navigation Bar

The second section of the library website is the top navigation bar. It includes an about section, contact information, reservation services, and other important campus links.

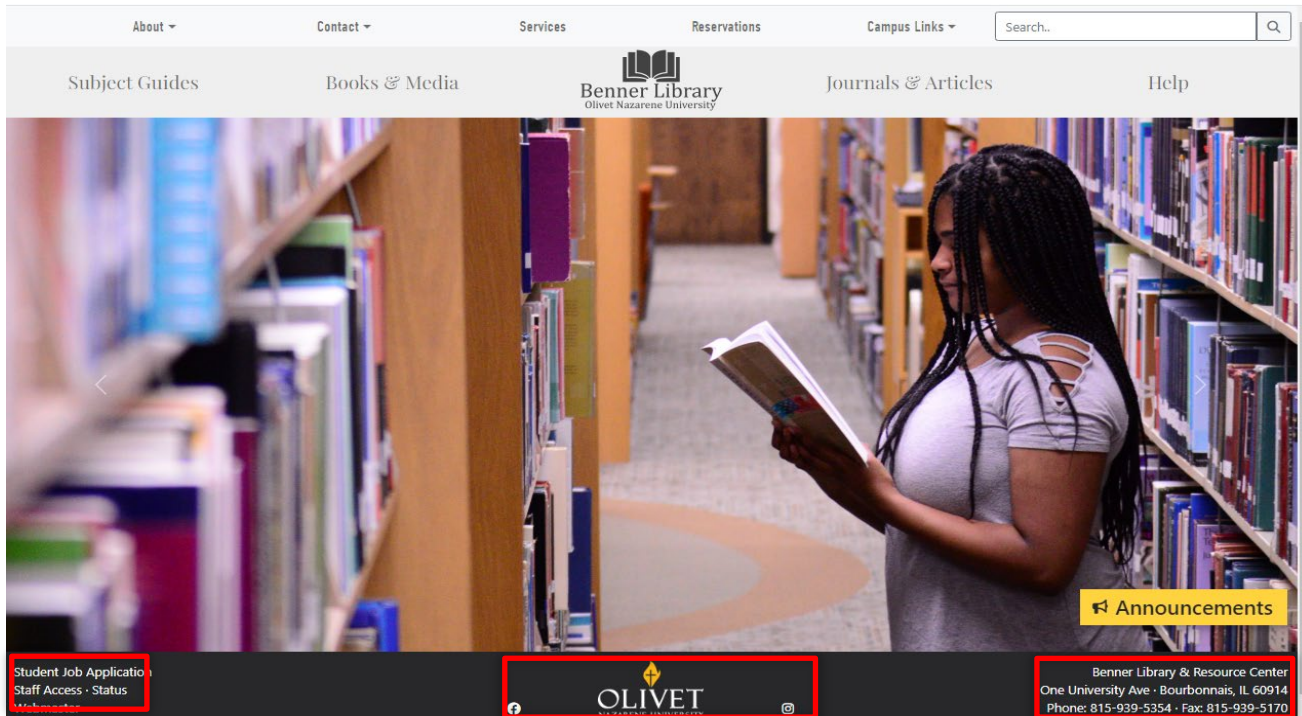

Clicking on reservations gives access to resources like meeting with a Library Staff person, study rooms, and even poster printing. You can even see what dates are no longer available for upcoming reservations. Use the search bar at the top to help with searching the library catalog.

The Footer

The fourth section is the footer. The footer will also remain consistent regardless of navigation. It has links and library contact information. Clicking the Olivet logo links to the Olivet website home page. Please report any technical issues with the library website to the webmaster link.

Across the very top of the website important and emergency updates will appear. Clicking the x will remove the bar, but refreshing the web page or navigating to a separate page will return it.

In the event of a website outage, the Website Outage Options page gives temporary links that provide workaround access.
